 There are many remarkable benefits of regular physical activity for older adults. Older adults who are active have greater flexibility, more endurance, better balance, and better health; and they live longer. Aerobic activities improve cardiorespiratory endurance, blood pressure, and blood lipid concentration; moderate-endurance activities improve the quality of sleep; and strength training improves posture and mobility. Older adults should be as physically active as their abilities and conditions will allow. Walking and stretching are easy examples of physical activity.
